Facebook 2019 Leak

- " The initial incident started in mid-to-late 2019. It is believed that threat actors scraped Facebook's website to acquire the information of millions of users. Web scraping refers to the process of using automated scripts or bots to harvest public information from sites, such as any information users make publicly available on their profiles (Names, City, Education, etc.). 3 YEARS OF SERVICE

February 11, 2020 at 02:09 AM #1

This is a dump from an open ElasticSearch instance I found last year. Someone was scraping all the public data on Instagram and saving it, so I grabbed a copy before it went down.

All data in the dump is public info, but all stored in a single, searchable place.

Data included: username, profile ID, profile picture, posted images, full name, bio, followers & likes counts

Accounts scraped: 2,447,542

Sample record:

Size: 13GB zipped, 75GB uncompressed

This content has been removed. Most likely because it's a dead link.

There was an article about this database being open on ZDnet or Motherboard or something but I can't find it now.

If any of my uploads are dead, PM me and I'll re-up ASAP
